Terri A. Lorenzon, Director
Environmental Quality Council

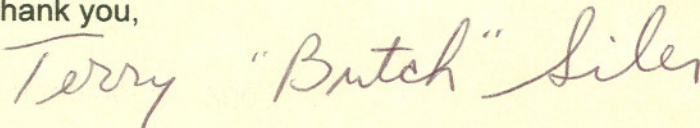

My name is Terry Siler. I live in Superior Wyoming. Southwest Wyoming, Sweetwater County. I would like to thank you for the opportunity to comment on Adobe Town.

I first entered the Adobe Town area in 1976. At that time it was truly a remote area of Wyoming. Only a few people entered into this area because of its remoteness. It was beautiful. I spent many nights alone in the wilderness. As time has come along more people have begun to frequent this area but it has stayed remote and unspoiled. It is still beautiful.

We as a nation need to continue to develop our natural resources. We need to do this to continue to function as a nation and for the industries. We as a nation also need to realize that there comes a time when we must step back and look at what we have. There comes a time when we must think about our future, about our generations to come. And to realize that every once in awhile there comes an opportunity to leave a gift for the future, a gift to our nation, a gift from the earth.

We need to protect Adobe Town. Its value of being what it is far outweighs the value of the minerals under it.

Thank you,

Terry "Butch" Siler
